Red Cross Golf Exhibition At Columbia Course Draws Throng To Aid Cause

CHAMPION CHICK EVANS WINS RED CROSS MATCH WITH PHENOMENAL PUTT

By BRYAN MORSE.

It takes a champion to show champions just where they get off. hat's just what champion Charles Evans, jr., of Edgewater, Ill., did in the big exhibition Red Cress golf match at Columbia Country Club yesterday. Long Jim Barnes, of Broadmoor, Cal.; Walter C. Hagen, the Rochester crack, and Freddy McLeod, the Columbia Country Club professional, who knows every blade of grass on his home course, were mixed up in the exhibition. But it takes a champion to show champions some-

With the champions all even after thirty-five holes of as perfect golf is has ever been played on any course in this section of the country "Chick" Evans turned the trick and wen the match I up with an 13-foot putt. It was a typical Evans setting and a typical Evans finish.

"Chick" likes the crowd. He likes the tense situations of a tight match. He is a sandy-haired man, blue-eyed, with a frank smiling exression. He is the type of athlete who always comes through in a pinch. And he did. And thirty-five hundred enthusiasts, whether they understood golf or the intracacies of the shot, applauded him to the echo. For Evans and Freddy McLeod, the home professional, the little "devil in his own home town"-Freddy, the Wasp-had beaten James Barnes and Walter Hagen, two of the greatest living professionals.

McLeod, to be sure, comes in for a six of the glory. Freedy held his B. Doyle and Charles Garland, the champion and McLeod a one up lead enot in exhibition or tournament play at Columbia. McLeod has but twice before equaled these figures. At that Jim barnes negotiated a 22 for the five and a looky kink-in from a shot some round in the morning but he as forced to in order to hold Moleod.

**Hagen got a beautiful two on a downhill put on the short eighth as he was playing most regular golf. Despite his long oversight travel, the Exchester man was consistently wood.

The players got away lafe, for Doyle Sinai-he climbed it but knew it not.

Vesterday's galfing exhibition was set; and the tennis fans turned to the superlettrely good. All of the playwe had at one time or another won the highest golfing title in the world. It is doubtful if they ever exceived their play of yesterday.

Michood's 67 in the morning was the busingling feature of the entire day. If went out in 33 and returned in 12, three under par figures and the best record for eighteen holes ever best record for eighteen holes ever anot in exhibition or tournamen play
